This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

HISTORICAL NOTE

The New Haven Colony Historical Society was organized by a committee of citizens, October 6th, 1862, who met for the purpose at the house of Mr. William A. Reynolds, No. 20 Elm Street (see p. 3, Vol. I). (The house stood on the home-lot and was built on the cellar of the dwelling of John Davenport, the first minister of New Haven. This site is now occupied by the First Presbyterian Church.) A memorial signed by twenty-three citizens was presented to the Mayor and Common Council on the 11th day of November, 1862, requesting permission to use two rooms in the City Hall for the purposes of the new society. On the evening of November 14th, 1862, a meeting of citizens was called at the office of the Mayor, for the formation of a Historical Society, and the following were present:

Harmanus M. Welch, Mayor,	Charles L. Chaplain,	Luzon B. Morris,
James F. Babcock,	William S. Charnley,	Frederick W. Northrop,
Leonard Bacon,	Horace Day,	William S. Porter,
E. Edwards Beardsley,	William Downes,	Samuel Punderson,
Sylvanus Butler,	Elial T. Foote,	William A. Reynolds,
Samuel C. Blackman,	William Goodwin,	William E. Sanford,
Fisk Parsons Brewer,	John C. Hollister,	Alfred Walker,
Henry Bronson,	Charles R. Ingersoll,	George H. Watrous,
Elisha Lord Cleaveland,	Henry C. Kingsley,	Henry White.

A Constitution and By-Laws were then adopted, and The New Haven Colony Historical Society was incorporated at the May Session of the Legislature of 1863.

The rooms in the City Hall were occupied by the Society until 1878, when they were needed for municipal purposes. The Society then secured two large rooms in the State House on the Green, when that historic structure was abandoned by the State. They retained the use of these rooms until 1885, when the building was condemned and taken down. The next home of the Society was in the Insurance Building, on Chapel Street, between Church and Temple Street, where it remained about ten years. The rapid increase of the Society's Collections made larger quarters desirable, and other locations were under consideration, when Mr. Henry F. English generously provided the present commodious building, as a memorial to his parents.

A catalogue of the articles forming the collection was published in 1885, but no catalogue has since been printed.

A committee has recently rearranged the articles in the museum, and renumbered and described the various objects.

The Library consists of several thousand bound volumes, and unbound pamphlets, mainly relating to colonial and civic history, biography and genealogy, a card catalogue of which is in preparation.

The Society also possess a large number of valuable manuscripts, which will be arranged for convenient reference as soon as practicable.

Six volumes of the Society's papers have already been published, and others will be issued from time to time.

Secretary of Jared Ingersoll.

72 GEORGE ROWLAND; born at Fairfield, Conn., December 3, 1796, died at New Haven, November 9, 1865. Was one of the early promoters of The New Haven and Farmington Canal and, in company with Capt. Menemon Sanford, built the first passenger canal packet to ply upon the canal, under the name of "The New England." Afterwards he constructed "The City Mill" and operated it from about 1831 until 1847, when it was removed to make room for the Union Railway station; pastel portrait. Cyrus Warner, of Westville.

73 PICTURE of "The City Mill" of New Haven, Conn., the late George Rowland proprietor and miller. The building was erected in 1834 upon property facing Union street, and located a short distance south of Chapel street, by the side of the canal. During the autumn of 1847 the mill buildings were removed to provide room for the erection of the Union Railroad depot, for the accommodation of the passenger service of all the railroads then terminating at New Haven. In later times a fire destroyed the Union Depot, and the ruins having been recently removed, nothing now remains to identify the location.
Thomas F. Rowland, of New York City.

74 A GILDED EAGLE erected on an oak standard, the history of which is described as follows by a plate attached to standard: "This Eagle was the figure-head on the steamboat United States, the first steam vessel owned by the original New Haven Steamboat Company, and built in the year 1821. Afterward it adorned the roof of the "City Mill," owned and operated by the late George Rowland, Esq., and located on Union street, between Chapel and Cherry (now Wooster) streets. Presented to the New Haven Colony Historical Society by Thomas Fitch Rowland, of New York, February, 1906." A life member. See No. 73.

75 THE SPADE with which Governor Oliver Wolcott commenced (at Southington) the excavation of the New Haven and Farmington Canal, July 4, 1825. The portrait (by William G. Munson) on the spade is that of Hon. James Hillhouse, 1754-1832, the superintendent. Geo. Rowland.

76 WAY BILL of the New Haven Steamboat Co., found by the donor, about twenty-five years ago, in the old steamboat storehouse of the company on the wharf at the west end of Tomlinson Bridge. The Way Bill is dated October 10, 1822. Nathan F. Hedges, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

77 A SPY GLASS which was used by Capt. Benjamin Beecher on the packet "Huntress" between New Haven and New York, and afterwards on the steamboat "United States." Edward C. Beecher.

78 A FRAMED ADVERTISEMENT of the New York and New Haven Steamboat Line, dated April 6, 1826, giving hours of leaving New York and New Haven of the "United States," Capt. Beecher, and "Providence," Capt. Sanford, together with information as to departure of post coaches and mail stages. Edward C. Beecher.

79 A FRAMED ADVERTISEMENT of the New Haven and Northampton Canal Boat Line and Steamboat to Cheapside, dated at Northampton, April 1, 1845. Edward C. Beecher.

80 TWO COLORED ENGRAVINGS of Queen Victoria. One represents the Queen dressed in her coronation robes, seated in St. Edward's chair; by Bouvier. The other represents the Queen on the terrace, at Windsor; by Corden. Both dated 1838. Frank E. Hotchkiss.

9 KING GEORGE III, 1738-1820; from an ancient house in Antigua, West Indies; oil portrait. Thomas R. Trowbridge, Jr.

10 DAVID DUNHAM.—David Dunham, a wealthy commission merchant of New York city, was the original promoter of the New York-New Orleans steamship service, making Havana, Cuba, an intermediate port. Dunham associated himself with Cadwallader Colden, the friend and biographer of Robert Fulton, Henry Eckford, the most prominent builder of marine engines, and others who were interested in establishing the New York-New Haven service with the steamboat "Fulton." They built the "Robert Fulton," a vessel of 750 tons burden, "entirely of oak, locust, cedar and Georgia pine, copper fastened, and equipped with a 'crosshead' engine, two copper boilers and two funnels." The "Robert Fulton" was the first steam vessel in the world that was built for ocean service. She left New York on her first trip April 25, 1820, and ran for three years, when she was sold to the Brazilian Government for a gun-boat. As a steam-boat the "Robert Fulton" was a success, covering the entire 2225 miles between New York and New Orleans in ten days, (average time for three years,) but as a financial venture she did not come up to the expectations of her promoters, although at times she carried upwards of one hundred and fifty passengers on a trip, and at the death of David Dunham passed into the hands of others.

David Dunham's granddaughter was the famous singer Mme. Cora de Wilhorst, born in New York city in October 1835, whose maiden name was "Withers."

"CINQUE." The subject of this portrait was the leader of a band of African slaves who were being taken to a West Indian port for sale. Soon after embarking they fell upon their captors, killing all of the crew except two men, whom they retained as navigators. These two sailors brought the vessel to Montauk Point, and thence to New London. The captives were afterwards taken to New Haven to be tried for mutiny. Popular sympathy was aroused, and Roger S. Baldwin, afterwards Governor and United States Senator, undertook their defence. Later he was seconded by John Quincy Adams. The dusky captives were set at liberty, and returned to their native land by the U. S. Government.

Needs of the Society

1 Additional Cases for the safety and proper display of its collections and manuscripts.

2 A Publication Fund to enable it to issue a volume annually of the Historical Papers read before the Society. Six volumes have already been published. Many valuable papers are now awaiting fund for printing.

3 An Enlarged Library Fund. The Society has now the Fowler Fund, yielding $200 annually. This does not supply the demand.

4 An Increase of the Endowment Fund, by testamentary or other gifts.

Objects Desired for the Society's Collection

1 Manuscripts of all kinds, pertaining to historical matters which perhaps may not be thought of value now, but will be of great interest to those who must come after us.

2 Printed Matter, local histories, genealogies, reports of anniversaries of towns, churches, social institutions, and of all subjects furnishing historical information worth preserving.

3 Portraits of deceased distinguished citizens of our City and State.

4 Ancient Objects, worthy of preservation in our cases for the benefit of future generations.
